'Togo' sofa by Ligne Roset, chosen by Samantha Hauvette

'My husband Swan and I [co-founder of interior architecture firm Hauvette & Madani] chose this sofa for our own home in Paris (pictured above), which we share with our children Achille, May and Gaia, because it combines the best of the 1970s with true modernity. With its generous shape, it adds character without cluttering the space. Timeless, comfortable and instantly recognisable, the design by Michel Ducaroy fits naturally into our interior, but has enough personality to make it a true centrepiece. We chose this rose-hued upholstery for its luminous softness. The powder pink highlights the slouchy lines of the "Togo", warms up the room and easily matches the rest of the decor. It's a subtle touch that brings both modernity and delicacy.' From £2,943 (ligne-roset.com). ➤
